

Reading.

If there is any one study more important than another in our schools for youth, it is that of reading—yet there are many schools where it receives but little attention, and is considered a secondary matter both by teachers and pupils. He or she who is not a good reader, is unfit to teach at all. The youthful mind is very susceptible of improvement, and can be moulded, like the plastic clay under the sculptor's hand, into nearly any desired shape. Too little attention is given to punctuation, emphasis, etc., and the child learns to read in many cases, without any regard to their significance. In some schools, however, pupils are thoroughly and properly drilled in their reading exercises—and the result is wonderful. Compare the girl or boy who has had improper training in this regard, with those who have learned to read under a skilled reader or ecclesiastic, and the remarks we have made will strike even those who are not good readers themselves, with force. It is a pleasure of the highest type to listen to a good reader. Like harmony in music, it pleases the ear. On the contrary, to listen to a poor reader, is like a discord in music, for it sounds harsh and unpleasant. An excellent story once read the Lord's Prayer to a distinguished lawyer, such was the charm of his articulation and the elegance of his reading, that the lawyer remarked after the reading was finished he had never before known there was so much beauty and pathos in that simplest and sweetest of all prayers. It is the manner, frequently, as much as the matter, that gives to any production its highest charm. Then learn to read well—it will add to the pleasure of the enjoyment of yourself—and especially to those for whom and to whom you may be called upon to read.

We conversed with Mr. Anton Jones, Civil Engineer connected with the Geological Survey of Kentucky, under Prof. M. S. Shaler, State Geologist, who, with other scientific men, were stationed at Cumberland Gap the past summer; and he informed us that the party gathered thousands of specimens from the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdom, during their sojourn in the mountains. The specimens will be laid before the next General Assembly of our State, and finally placed in our Public Museum. Some of them will be taken to the Centennial next year at Philadelphia, and they will show the world what almost unbounded and inexhaustible resources we have in that respect. This survey has been earnestly prosecuted, and should, as it probably will, receive further hearty support from our Legislature. Untold wealth lies hidden in millions of acres of Kentucky soil, and this survey will open it up and exhibit it like a panorama. The exhibition of the various specimens of ores, etc., found in diverse parts of our State in inexhaustible abundance and of the best quality, will bring the attention of home and foreign capitalists to our resources, and their ultimate development is assured.

JUNIOR COPELAND of the Kentucky Supreme Court, very strangely, decided that "if the driver of a street car sees a person on the track who is apparently capable of taking care of himself, and the person is far enough in advance to have time to get off before the train reaches him, the driver has a right to presume that he will leave the track in time to prevent being run over, and the driver (the company) will not be chargeable with negligence if he acts upon such presumption, and, contrary to the reasonable probability, the person remains on the track and is injured." If that is the law in the case, would it not apply also to the driver of a coach or other vehicle, and to the driver of a steam car? Suppose the man is walking with his back to the driver, and is deaf; would the company be held not to blame if the car, coach, or engine ran over and injured the individual, simply because the person was "apparently capable of taking care of himself, and was far enough away to get off?" The letter of the decision referred to takes that ground and lays down that doctrine as the Supreme law of this State.

"ANN ELIZA."—If the "pictures" can be believed, Ann Eliza Young, the 16th spouse of Brigham, the Prophet, is a handsome woman. She is now traveling over the country lecturing against Polygamy generally—Brigham in particular. May her pocket become plumb, and her efforts prove successful in the way of making Polygamy odious. It is worse than "slavery," and yet the Bads have but little to say against it. Perhaps a majority of them hold to the same faith that the Prophet does.

Last week our spirits were cast down on account of the political aspect of things. They have risen again.—New York has gone Democratic by nearly 20,000 majority. Wisconsin is virtually one. Virginia, Maryland, Mississippi, have each done their duty nobly.

LABORING ASSOCIATIONS are becoming "quite the rage" in our towns and villages over the River. Lexington, Paris, etc., have them, and they are in vogue noted lecturers to visit them during the winter season. "Josh Billings," a man of talent, who has said and written many clever things, lectured in Paris and Lexington recently. These Associations are of great benefit to the intelligent portion of the public, and do much to furnish enjoyable, profitable and innocent amusement to the people. We wish there was enterprise enough in our citizens to stir them up to the formation of such a Society. One good Lecture is better than all the coarse shows, circuses and theatres in the world.

DISASTERS AT SEA.—Over 200, instead of 100 lives were lost from the Ship Pacific, many of whom were women. The Steam-Ship City of Washington, was also lost off Galveston Bar the other day, but it is said that the crew and passengers, about 50 in number—got safely off into boats and were seen going in a westerly course. The brig Palo-Alto, was also wrecked, and a few of her passengers arrived at New York last Tuesday. An iron vessel was found sunk off the coast of Cuba recently, with dead bodies upon it. It is further reported that several vessels have been lost, with all on board, during the late terrible hurricane which fairly swept the seas.

H. V. REDFIELD, the regular southern correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from Jackson, Miss., to that paper, says the recent election in that State was as peaceful as any he ever saw, and as properly conducted. He writes that the State is thoroughly and finally redeemed from Radical carpet-bag misrule, and as a consequence property has advanced in value 25 per cent.; that the new Legislature, with a majority of 30 on joint ballot, will cut down taxation 75 per cent., and reduce the expenditures 500 per cent. He says the people are jubilant as they have a right to be.

THE careless, not to say reckless habit of poking your head, arms, or legs out of car windows while the train is moving, was rendered sadly manifest near Louisville last Sunday, a young man on the narrow gauge road to Harrods creek put his head out the car window and it was struck by a tree which stood near the track and so fractured his skull as to render him insensible, in which condition he still lingers, and it is thought will cause his death. This sad lesson will not deter careless people from doing the same thing.

We received a copy of a Virginia paper, giving the full details of the ceremonies on the occasion of the unveiling of the statue of the immortal Stonewall Jackson. We should like to have the space to lay before our readers some of the extracts from the speeches, etc., delivered on the occasion. Jackson endeared himself not only to the people of his native State, but to all persons everywhere who admire civic and military genius and Christian virtue.

MISSISSIPPI rejoiceth with exceeding great joy. The reign of the carpet-bagger there is over and gone, and the time for rejoicing in the Democratic camp has come, the voice of the patriot is heard in that land.—From 20,000 Radical majority they have been redeemed, and a Democratic majority of 20,000 has resulted from the combined efforts of true men of all parties and colors.

OBJECTS.—There are some men who will, for contrariness if nothing else, object to anything. A Rev. Chadwick, of New York, wrote a long and violent letter in the Sun, objecting to Moody and Sankey's revival. But when one remembers that even Christ was rejected by his own people, and objected to by a disciple, one can't wonder that mere mortals could please everybody.

SOME of our Democratic exchanges have begun to figure on the coming Presidential electoral vote, and all of them succeed in electing a Democrat by a majority of 15 to 26 electoral votes, after counting out the States which went Radical at the recent elections, and which, while dubious, under a proper National platform, again fall into line and join our conquering columns.

THE Scottsville Argus says that on taking up the corpse of a woman who had died there sometime before, for interment at another place, it was found that she had turned over on her left side, thus indicating that she had been buried alive, while in a seeming state of death, and awoke after burial, struggled to escape from her grave and turned up on her side.

FOUNDER.—The ship Pacific foundered off the coast of Washington Territory the other day, and over 100 lives were lost. Only one man survived the wreck, and he was picked up two days after, floating on a part of the pilot house, where he had been without food or drink for over fifty hours. The loss in money was over $150,000.

JOYCE, the convicted felon at St. Louis, says—"All the lying correspondents this side of perdition can't make him wince; that the ace will bray when the lion is down, and that worms can crawl over supped gladiators." Not bad for a felon, such a sentiment.

THE pride of Cincinnati is her fountain. The glory of St. Louis is her iron and steel bridge. The boast of Louisville is her Broadway street lined with palatial residences. The chief delight of Chicago is that she had the largest fire in the world and built up the waste places in less than three years. Brooklyn boasts the great scandal of this or any other age.

NEXT year, the voters of the Appellate Court District, which embraces this and several adjacent counties, will be called upon to select a Judge for the term of eight years. So far, we have heard no one spoken of as a probable candidate for this high and very important position, but there is time yet to bring out the best legal talent in the District.

VICE PRESIDENT WILSON, according to our latest advices, is very ill. In fact, it is said that he may not recover, and such is the fear manifested in his case, that attendants are with him all the time, in order to aid him in any way they can, and report his condition from time to time to those who are the most interested.

An exchange says that one of its subscribers, a lady, stopped her paper in disgust, because the editor did not tell all about her daughter's wedding, but gave the full account of another woman's daughter's wedding. The poor creature did not know that the latter notice was paid for at "twenty cents a line."

THE Courier-Journal complains that some of its exchanges come to the office in a battered condition. Other papers could make a similar complaint. None but perfect copies should be sent to exchanges, and the "battered" ones, as suggested by the Courier-Journal, should be sent to non-paying subscribers.

BANK STOCK.—About $28,000 were paid out for Bank-Stock at Lexington the other day. Stock sold as high as $135 25 per share, and none for less than $122 25. This proves two things—first that money is abundant with rich folk over there—and that banks are profitable institutions to stock-holders.

A CITIZEN of the Republic of Ecuador, late a minister of that country to our own, and who is now a prominent candidate for the Presidency of that little realm, was recently married to an American beauty, and they sailed for their Southern home a last week.

THE Crown Prince of the German Empire, son of Kaiser Wilhelm, will visit the United States next year, and be present at our Centennial. Of course our Jankines and other Snobs, will treat him like they did Alexis—and thus show their genuine qualities.

GENERAL GRANT sat for an hour and a half the other night, listening to the Post, Joaquin Miller, as he delivered a lecture in Washington. The President had a free ticket. Miller gave the politicians and office-holders fits.

Our present reporter of the decisions of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, has put out his tenth volume. It comes to us that this is multiplying our legal reports a little too rapidly. They cost six dollars a volume.

It is said that the people of Johnson county spend $31,500 per year for coffee, and only $1,500 for schools.—How much do they spend for liquor? That's the question!

ALTHOUGH the time for the assembling of our Legislature is so near at hand, but little is said of the member who is to be chosen Speaker of the Lower House.

The past summer, according to the report of scientific men, was the coolest by several degrees, that has been in this country for the last eighty years.

As was expected, the wet summer of 1875, is followed by a very dry fall. The coming winter, it is thought, will be wet and very disagreeable.

Two Brooklyn clergymen resigned their ministerial charges recently. Dr. Storrs, a noted divine was one of them.

THOS. ROWLAND, the jailer of Madison county, committed suicide the other day. No reason assigned for the deed.

It is said that figures don't lie. That may be true, but it depends altogether upon who makes the figures.

THANKSGIVING.

Proclamation by the Governor of Kentucky.

The many blessings enjoyed by us as a people, during the year now drawing to a close, should fill our hearts with humble thankfulness to Almighty God for the great benefits bestowed upon us.

Free Government has been continued to be conducted to us. Plentiful harvests have crowned the labor of husbandmen, and every department of industry has had its compensating reward.

In recognition of these blessings, it is proper that we should dedicate one day to thanksgiving and prayer, so that we may enter upon the new year with a true conception of our obligations, and more devout obedience to the will of the Ruler of the Universe.

Wherefore, I, James K. McCreary, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, do designate and appoint Thursday, the 29th of November, 1878, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and request the people of Kentucky to cease all secular business on that day, and assemble with harmony and charity, one with another, in their houses of public worship, and in family circles, and devoutly engage in such religious observances as shall properly express their gratitude for the blessings of the past year, and their earnest hope for the continuance of Divine favor.

In witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the great Seal of State to be affixed. Done at the city of Frankfort, November 6th, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, and in the eighty-fourth year of the Commonwealth.

JAS. K. MCCREARY,
Governor.
J. STONNARD JOHNSON,
Secretary of State.

"After Being Brought."

The following strange incident may serve to gratify some of your readers' curiosity. About sixty-two years ago a man by the name of Thomas Williams came from Virginia to Lincoln county, and a pupil of the house of a Mr. Steiner, who lived near Gillette Creek Station. It is said that Williams was not a man of much sense, and that was true as the following will prove. About a year after he had been at Steiner's he whetted his razor often. One day after dark he left the house, and, being out some time, came one went out to see what had become of him, and groans were heard. Observing a light they went to an apple tree and found him lying under it with his throat cut, and in an insensible condition. He died the next day. Mrs. Steiner believed that any one who committed suicide should be "buried under the nearest water course, or their spirit would return and haunt the place where the deed was done." To gratify her superstition he was buried beyond Gillette's Creek, about fifty yards from the bank. Time passed on and the facts were nearly forgotten. Last July, after a high tide in the creek the feet and legs of the skeleton were exposed. The year before a King-Fisher had made a nest and reared a brood of young in a hole at the foot of this grave. Alexander Traylor, John Traylor, and Martin Holsteler made a bonfire, destroyed the remains and re-buried them at a graveyard. The clay was settled firmly upon the bones. A small part of the clothing was on the bones and one large brass button attached to the coat. The nails of his first coffin were certainly made at a blacksmith shop, as they were of wrought iron. The circumstances of his death are gathered from old uncle Ben Holsteler who told your correspondent that he, in company with Conrad Duddar, or Bill Duddar, and several others passed by the house the morning after the death, they having started to join the Kentucky troops who were on route to join General Jackson's army at New Orleans, which was sixty-two years ago, or a little over.

If the above singular statement of facts is worthy of a place in your interesting paper, you will know what disposition to make of it. Truly yours, A. T. GILBERT'S CREEK, Nov. 9, 1878.

A western money count day was rainy. If ever, even in Stanford, then on Monday last. Fewer cattle were on the market, and lower prices than of late for many months past. All kinds of stock were at the lowest figures except hogs, which, owing to the scarcity of that kind, held at pretty high figures, and the demand is beyond the supply by great odds.

Jim E. Baker, the heavy man, whom all our men and boys desire to know, is still at his post. He is doing a thriving business, as he deserves to do, because he treats the traveling public right. He keeps his vehicles clean, and his horses fat and in good health. Just try one of his turnouts and see if all we have said is not true.

Paul M. D. Hume, the efficient teacher of the Stanford district school, has been afflicted with rheumatism for several days; so much so, in fact, that he has been unable to attend to his duties. His place is, however, worthily and ably filled by Mr. Wallace E. Varney, a young man of fine intelligence, and there has been no cessation of the school exercises.

To the credit of the employment managers generally, of Knoxville branch of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, be it said, that no serious accident has ever occurred on the branch, although half of the way has been worked for over twenty years, and the balance about ten years. This, then, when the time made on the route has averaged twenty miles per running hour.

We learn that three of the prisoners who escaped from the Pulaski jail, recently, have been captured and returned to "durance vile." Of this we are not fully advised, but hope it is true, as malefactors should receive such punishment as their offenses merit. Some of them are said to be bad men, and they should be taught the school of experience to cease their inhuman conduct.
